Warmed by the Gulf Stream and rich in history, Bermuda enjoys a lovely year round semi-tropical climate. Bermuda's 181 islands and islets cover just 22 miles and are only two miles wide, so it's easy to get around, especially if you hire a scooter. Do visit the original capital, St George's, as it's now a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Naturally, the glorious pink sandy beaches and warm sunshine make Bermuda a holiday haven for most of the year. But if you're more into golf, walking and exploring then it's worth coming during the winter when the climate is milder and the prices drop. Whenever you choose to visit Bermuda, you're sure to love the casual elegance of the place, the laid-back pace and the great friendliness of the people.

There's every sort of restaurant in Bermuda, from romantic oceanfront restaurants and casual brasseries to British pubs and sushi bars. Amongst our favourites are the Blue Juice Bar in Hamilton for tapas, Harbourfront for sushi and La Coquille for superb French cuisine. Also excellent are the more modern The Pickled Onion, the Barracuda Grill, and the informal Aggie's Garden & Waterside.

Aruba's landscape is a canvas for indulgence, from the azure waters perfect for yacht charters to the Arikok National Park's rugged beauty. Aruba's commitment to sustainability ensures eco-conscious travellers can enjoy paradise guilt-free. Aruba's cultural richness adds depth to the luxury experience, with festivals like Carnival and the Bon Bini Festival offering vibrant celebrations. # BAR

From the rum-swilling buccaneers and colonial sugar barons of old, to the modern day jet set playing cat-and-mouse with the paparazzi on board their luxury yachts, Barbados has long enticed adventurers and pleasure seekers to its platinum sands.

Today this tiny island in the eastern Caribbean offers everything from magnificent, tranquil beaches to dramatic cliffs, rugged rolling hills, superb restaurants and picture-perfect golf courses. And it's particularly popular with British travellers; the quaint little villages with their churches and cricket pitches are rather redolent of home, albeit with the occasional monkey in the trees to remind you that you're in the tropics.

The west coast is where it's at for endless white sand beaches and luxurious high-end hotels, and if you need a new outfit for dinner then hit the chic boutiques of Holetown's Limegrove shopping mall. Jump on a local reggae bus to get into the island spirit, or hire a car and spend a more sedate afternoon exploring the east coast's sleepy local villages and dramatic Atlantic coastline. Bajans and tourists alike head to the buzzing bars of St Lawrence Gap in the south of the island to party when the sun goes down, and the Friday night fish fry at Oistins is a veritable Barbados institution. The bustling capital, Bridgetown is also well worth a visit for shopping, the colourful local Cheapside market, rum shops and colonial architecture.
